VOL. XVIII. NO DOUBT ABOUT THIS.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO TRANS-

WASHINGTON, March 17 .- [Special.] -The dickering is done. The squabble is over and the Beltimere and Ohio deal is closed. This is not mere rumor, but an actual fact, and thereby Iscore for THE CONSTITUTION another big test on the first news. The trade has been positively effected and Mr. Garrett has deeded a controlling interest in his great railroad property to new owners. WHO ARE THE PURCHASERS?

Who the purchasers are is yet held in profound secrecy, but some names that have been preminently connected with the recent negotistions are not down on the list. Mr. Sully has nothing to do with the purchase and does rot probably, even know of it, as yet. Neither has Mr. Gou'd any interest in the trade, nor is the Terminal company in its corporate capacity, the buyer, but at the same time some of the keding members of Terminal management are individually interested. When this matter is generally known and the mystery cleared up, it will more than likely have a stimulating effect on the general stock market, and the tape will probably record considerably higher prices for the majority of active stocks.

The absorbing interest in this subject of late, and the perplexing uncertainty of the matter, has been a decided damper on speculation, and tended to materially check the volume of trade in the exchange.

ME. JOHN H. INMAN DECLINES. With regard to the future presidency of the Terminal company, it is now generally known that Mr. John H. Inman has positively de :lined to entertain the idea of accepting it, and today's rumor is that Mr. R. S. Hays, formerly manager of Gould's Missouri Pacific system, has been solicited to take the position, and that he's considering the matter favorably. Mr. Have's reputation as a railroad man of consum-mate ability is undisputed, and the suggestion of his name is received with such universal favor that is is even possible that Mr. Sully would be willing to resign in his favor.

M. J. V.

FROM ANOTHER CORRESPONDENT. NEW YORK, March 17 .- [Special.] -There were two reports in Wall street today concerning the Baltimore and Ohio "deal." In both cases the control of the railroad, it was said, had certainly passed out of the hands of President Garrett. One had the merit of a partial novelty in stating that John W. Mackay, the Californis millionaire, was the buyer. According to this theory it was asserted that President Garrett probably would remain chief executive of the system, which would be expanded into s new railway combination, in which the interest of Baltimore would not suffer, while an independent line to New York would be seund. It is not known that Mr. Mackay has my large railroad interests, or that he has excrentertained a desire to become conspicucus in railroad management or ownership. He is reported to be the principal owner of the pestal and united lines of telegraph, and of the Conmercial cable companies, but the purchase of the Baltimore and Ohio railread could add little to the harmony of interest between these companies and the Baltimore and Ohio telegraph company.

Mr. Mackay is said to be in California, but one of his friends in this city said to-day that in his judgment there was not the slightest foundation for the rumors connecting Mr. Mackay's name with the Baltimore and Ohio

A prominent representative of the Vanderbilt interests who was seen early in the day said to THE CONSTITUTION:

"There is nothing in the Baltimore and Ohio matter that has any substance as affecting Mr. Vanderbilt and the Pennsylvania interests. The one fact that is prominent is that Mr. Garrett is determined to sell his road, and when that is the case he will sometime find a purchaser at some price. But the Sully negotiations turned into a farce, and I think no support will be lent to another such affair."

WASHINGTON GOSSIP. Appointments by the President --- A New

Call for Bonds.

Washington, March 17.—The president today appointed Wm. N. Fisher, postmaster at Four to be Built at Once—Mr. Armour Has Nothing to do With Them.

Philadelphia, March 17.—A contract, repsenting over a quarter of a million dollars, for nachinery alone, was signed today by W. W. Smith, president; John H. Vaile, vice president; and O. M. Gottschalk, counsel representing the Smith & Vaile company, of Dayton, O, and Henry C. Butcher, president; Frederick Oliver and Daniel A. Tompkins, of Charlotte, N. C., executive committee, as representatives of the Southern cotton seed oil company, recently organized in New Jersey. The contract calls for the construction of press room machinery for eight cotton seed oil mills of the capacity—of 150 tons per day each, and the exact price stipulated is $266,000. All of this machinery, as well as 256 linters and twenty huiling machines contracted for with the Carver Cotton Gin company, of East Bridgewater, Mass., is to be ready and delivered in time to work up the coming season's crop. The contract with the Smith & Vaile company carries with it all patents on this kind of machinery now owned by that company and this, it is said, gives the Sonthern Cotton Seed Oil company practical control of all machinery by which the cotton seed oil is made under the new and improved process, Mills are to be erected at different points so as to cover the entire cotton belt, and also insure to the company an unlimited supply of seed of which there is annually produced about 3,000,000 tons, and only about 400,000 tons have heretofore been reduced to oil, the balance having, in recent years, been used for fertilizing purposes.

"JONES OF FLORIDA," Not Anyways Disfigured and Still in the Ring.

DETROIT, March 17.—At the celebration of St. Patrick's day in this city tonight, Senator C. W. Jones, of Florida, was one of the chief speakers. After speaking of the marvellons

C. W. Jones, of Florida, was one of the chief speakers. After speaking of the marvellous progress made in this country since its first settlement, he took up the subject of labor, opposing any government interference between labor and capital. He then said:

When we speak of the new south, it cannot be meant that any material change has taken place in the cheracter or qualities of the people; nor do I think it desirable that there should be any change, for I am sure from what I know of them if one did take place, it would be for the worse. They are a generous, brave, open-hearted people, utterly devoid of the close, calculating, selfish power that you will find in some parts of the country—strongly developed, and as free from bigory and intolerance as any people under the sun. They were greatly misunderstood at the north before the late civil war, and they are misunderstood yet. I have lived among them since I was 14 years of age, and I have had an experience that few natives ever had to test their true character. I don't liftlik there is any part of the country where I could have got to the bar, and succeded ewell, as the Soulh I am quite sure that if my lot had been east in any other part of this great country than in the cre I like, "Jones, of Florida," would never that if my lot had been east in any other part of this great country than in the cre I like, "Jones, of Florida," would never that if my lot had been east in any other part of the part of the sum place at the south were such as might have heen expected to follow the result of a great war. Freedom is now national, not sectional. Tac amendments to the constitution have been sincerely accepted by the people. The emancipated slaves are conceded every political right enjoyed amendments to the constitution have been sincerely accepted by the people. The eman slanded shaves are conceded every political right enloyed by white men, and are doing as well as any laboring class in the world. The right of secession, with the institution of slavery, is abandoned forever, and since the people have been left to regulate their own affairs, peace, contentment and prosperity have followed. There is nept and the people have been left to regulate their own affairs, peace, contentment and prosperity have followed. There is nept and the people have been left to regulate their own affairs, peace, contentment and prosperity have followed. There is negative to the same and the same acquainted where horthern nem will not be well-comed and conceded as much freedom of opinion as they can have anywhere. With the exceptions that I have stated, there is nothing new about the south nor is there any desire for a change. The simplicity and sincerity of social life at the south need no improvement from older countries to increase the happiness of her people, for in some of the over-refined civilizations of the earth, there will be found an internal rottonness, which, if rewill be found an internal rottenness, which, if re vealed to the public view, would shock every feel-log of humanity.

Dr. Joseph Parker, of London. Talked of

for Plymouth Church's Pastor. NEW YORK, March 17.—The question of who is to succeed Mr. Beecher in the Plymouth church pulpit has already obtruded itself upon the minds of the congregation, and in many instances given rise to conjectures upon the instances given rise to conjectures upon the ultimate selection of trustees. The major preferences at present seem to be Dr. Joseph Parker, of London. Dr. Parker was a friend and admirer of Mr. Beecher, and for years there was the strongest bond of sympathy between the two, who in many ways resembled each other. During his visit to England Mr. Beecher was the guest of Dr. Parker, and preached in his church, the City Temple, in Holborn. Four years ago Dr. Parker come over to this country and delivered a few of his sermons in Plymouth church. Those who heard him were much impressed by his brilliant oratory.

It is said that General Horatio King has liking for Dr. Parker, while John T. Howard, one of the founders of the church, would be pleased to see Dr. Lynan Abbott in the Plymouth pulpit. Mr. Thomas G. Shearwood thinks it would be a wise plan to select a minister who is *otally different from Mr. Beecher, so that no disparaging comparisons can be drawn.

DIAMONDS BEFORE A CAMERA.

The Chinese Minister Wears $1,000,000 Worth While Having His Picture Taken. Washington, March 17.—Mr. Chang Yen Hoon, Chinese minister, sat for some photographs today. He was accompanied by his interpreter and two or three lady friends who were axious to see the operation. His servants carried up to the photographer's room two or three trunks and sevend saveling cases in which were tan to the photographer's room two or three trunks and several smaller cases, in which were ten or a dozen changes of costume. The minister was "done" in each of these and in as many different positions. He wore a silk cap, in the center of which was a large diamond, about the size of a hazel nut. The cap fitted so closely that the diamond looked like a huge sterett in his skull. From the cap floated a large proceed feather.

ITS OBSERVANCE THROUGHOUT THE COUNTRY

New York, March 17.—St. Patrick's day was generally observed by the sons of Ireland in this city. On the municipal departments and many of the city buildings the green flag was thrown to the breeze. Irish societies pa-raded in two distinct bodies, one crossing to Brooklyn and joining the Brooklyn proc The other formed on Fifth avenue. After a parade through the principal streets, the procession was reviewed in Union square by Mayor Hewitt. The procession then marched to Jones woods to take part in the annual picnic.

The Brooklyn people celebrated today appropriately by flying Irish flags on their private and public buildings. A procession of about 4,000 men formed on Bedford avenue and marched to the city hall, where it was reviewed by Mayor Whitney. Brooklyn had two parades. Another procession, composed of about 1,000 members of Iriah societies, under Marshall Mulholland, paraded in the afternoon. They were also reviewed by the mayor and marched through the principal streets.

The picnic of the Irish societies at Jones's woods, was of mammoth proportions.

Dr. McGlynn made his first appearance since his recent illness. He was greeted with tumultuous applause. In his speech he said the precious doctrine that God had given the fair earth to all the sons of men, and that he had made of one breath all mankind to stand equal in the presence of their Maker, was the possestion of the preches of Irahada and that was well-made of one breath all manking to stand equal in the presence of their Maker, was the possession of the people of Ireland and they would place dependence upon no man, or set of men, that would endeavor to interpose between them and the blessings that God had given equally to all his children. It might seem at first a little out of place, perhaps, for himself, a priest of the Catholic church, upon that platform which was not so much religious as platform which was not so much religious as political, and upon which stood patriotic men who were not of that fold, to content himself with merely preaching to them a St. Patrick's day sermon. But he was a priest and he would with merely preaching to them a St. Patrick's dsy sermon. But he was a priest and he would never be anything else but a priest. [Tremendous applause.] And, therefore, they must pardon him if, wherever he stood, upon whatever platform, whether he called upon patrictism or political economy, he should inject into his remarks something of the nature of a sermon. All great human causes were necessarily rolligious, and if religion would not go with any cause, then the fight was not worth fighting. If that were not so, then life was put upon the even basis of those who said: "Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we die." It was but a vulgar scramble for those good things of this world, of which there are not enough to go around. The religion that they believed to be best and certain, patriotic and economic truth, namely: that God [gave to no nation the right to enslave another, and the right to momen to cuslave his brother, were proofs of their feality to honest truth. All who had Irish blood in their veins felt it course more rapidly through their bodies today as they perceived the approach of Ireland's liberty. Their hearts are with those who were straggling in the ceuncils of the British parliament for justice to Ireland, and with those who are; trying to solve that connamic mobilem, without an attendance would be but half a battle. The great question for the Irish people today was not so much should they be free from foreign dictation, as should they be enslaved—the great masses of the people—by a privileged few it mattered not, whether native or British. The great bane of Ircland was not so much foreign rule as land-lordism, and it mattered not a jot whether they were Ergish or Irish, whether they spoke the Celtic or Saxon tongue. [Cheers, confusion were English or Irish, whether they spoke the were Erglish or Irish, whether they spoke the Celtic or Saxon tongue. [Cheers, confusion and three groans for the English government.]

So while they shouted "home rule for Ireland," let them not forget at the same time to say "the land for the Irish people."

In conclusion, the speaker said that the people in Ireland, on St. Patrick's day, held the land for the property of the people of the land in common.

The one hundred and third anniversary dinner of the Friendly Sons of St. Patrick was given tonight at Delmonico's. There were three hundred guests. Among the letters of eret was one from President Cleveland in which he alludes to the fact of its being the ciety, and says that this indication of the age of the organization induced the reflection that to be perpetuated thus long it must be founded upon objects and purposes vitalized by the sentiments of patriotism and made sacred by the tenderest associations. He said that traditions of other lands might well be kept alive in a country where all mankind could meet on equal terms. Honors might, therefore, be well given to a saint and heroes of other times by those who reverently remembering these things, find glory and honor in their claim to American citizenship. ciety, and says that this indication of the age

PHILADELPHIA, March 17.—St. Patrick's day was appropriately commemorated in this city. At all the Catholic churches mass and special services apropos of the day were held. At St. Patrick's church pontificial high mass was celebrated by Bishop O'Hara. Archbishop Eyan was in the sanctuary during the service. In the afternoon there was a lengthy and creditable street period of the ArcientOrder of His. itable street parade of the Ancient Order of Hibernians. The streets along the route of pro-cession were crowded with spectators and many buildings were profusely decorated with flags, the stars and stripes being copiously intertwined with the green and the golden harp. In front of Independence hall, the parade was reviewed by the president and members of both branches of the city conneil.

BAD WEATHER IN BALTIMORE.

PALTIMORE, March 17.—St. Patrick's day passed very quietly in this city. The early morning was bright and pleasant, but early in the forenoon a regular blizzard came from the northeast and there was a slight fall of snow for the remainder of the day. The usual mass was sung at St. Patrick's church and the anvel distribution of premiums at the Oliver. nual distribution of premiums at the Oliver Hibernian free school took place. There were no parades, and but for an occasional green emblem on the streets there was no outward sign of the occasion. The banquet of the Hibernian society took place this evennig.

MONTREAL, March 17.—St. Patrick's day was observed by the Irish of this city with grat eclat. The various Irish national temperance and benefit societies, numbering thousands, formed in procession in Victoria square and headed by their bands playing national airs marched to St. Patrick's church, where Archbishop Fabre offered high mass. Bishop Welch, of London, Ont, preached a sermon. The procession afterwards reformed and marched through the principal streets.

The oration of the evening was delivered by Hon. James Phelan, member of congress from the 10th district. At the close of the oration Hon. M. T. Bryan, in behalf of the Nashville union and the Irish National league, presented Mr. Phelan with a magnificant gold-headed cane as a testimony of the esteem in which he is held here.

OBSERVANCE IN IRFLAND.

DUBLIN, March 17.—Beyond a few scrimmages in Londonderry and elsewhere, St. Patilk's day was observed in an orderly manner throughout Ireland.

Lox Don, March 17.—A feature of the observace of St. Patrick's day in England was the operance of many Englishmen wearing samrocks. A sleet and snow storm stopped al outdoor demonstrations in honor of the day i Dublin, and the trooping of colors, usually one of the events of the celebration of St. Jatrick's day there, did not take place today. It is feared that riots will ensue from the celebration of the day at Lurgan, county Armagh, and 200 extra police have been added to the rigular local force.

lindale Accident.

Boston, March 17.—Investigation by the re read commissioners into the Realindale scident is in progress daily, but until this aternoon it was not sensational. Harlen W. Bock testified that he had been in the habit of visiting West Roxbury. Once when riding under the bridge he noticed some loose nuts happing down from the bridge and the rads from which nuts were broken off. He notified a young man in the superintendent's office and he said that the matter would be looked after He subsequently noticed the trains slowed down on the bridge to a man's walking peace. Sonetime afterward he noticed that the defect had not been remedied and more nuts were off, and he visited the superintendent's office a second time. He was told by the young man that he (Brock) was borrowing a good deal of trable about that bridge; that the loose nuts hat been found to be of no consequence, and that if he was afraid to ride he had better wak. This testimony occasioned no little sensation in the courtroom.

wak. This testimony occasioned no little sensation in the courtroom.

Idmind H. Hemins, of Boston, builder of the bridge, said it was the last he built and since then he had been engaged as consulting engineer. The main tension bars of Bussey bridge were made by the Pheedix, Pa., Iron works and the balance of the work made by the Trenton, N. J., Iron company, from his designs. He then-described the dimensions, technically. It was intended to carry 3,000 pounds to each lineal foor and was capable of that strain, and allowances were made for even greater. The work was done in conthat strain, and allowances were made for even greater. The work was done in conformity with the specifications. Bridge builders do not always inspect every piece of iron that is put in their work, though they may some of it. There are inspectors for that duty. The Phoenix company follows that plan. No inspection of the Bussey bridge was made on behalf of the company that he knew of. He, Hemins, inspected it as much as any bridge that was built that was inspected.

Pass road, near Boeme. Henry Madison, a well known stock man and contractor of this city, had a contract for grading the road, and employed a number of men and teams. One of the laborers, named William Stone, went to Madison and asked him for some money and was told he could not get any until Saturday. Stone became enraged, and said he would have either the money or blood, and without further provocation pulled a revolver and fired, killing Madison instantly. ACCIDENT AT CHURCH. A Platform Gives Way and Many Persons are Wounded.

Chicago, March 17.—A panic occurred at the Roman Catholic church of Nativity, corner of Dashiel and Thirty-Ninth streets, this afterneon. The church was completely crowded, and outside on the steps leading up to the church was a vast crowd unable to gain admittance. Suddenly there was a sharp crack. mittance. Suddenly there was a sharp crack, followed by a grinding crash, and fully 200 men, women and children were precipitated ten feet, the front door platform having given way. Twenty-three persons in all received more or less serious injuries. Mrs. Bernan, an aged woman, had her back broken, P. O'Connor had both legs broken. Many people were injured by being tramped on. People inside the church were at first inclined to rush for the doors, but were caimed owing to words of the officiating priest.

Kuklux Killed.

CRAE ORCHARD, Ky., March 17.—Last night the virilants, or the law and order club, waited on Mrs. Eliza Fish, a liquor seller. They took her out of her yard, and were whipping her when shots were fired from over the jence, and three of the kuklux were left dead. Their names are John Long, Walter Turpin and John Hasty. AN OPERATOR'S MISTAKE

THE TROUBLE IT HAS CAUSED IRVING BISHOP.

New York, March 17.—[Special.]—Washington Irving Bishop was considerably worked up today over the statement of his wife that the reason she left him was he was suffering at the time and ever since her marriage with him from a contagious malady, which would ulti-mately end his life. The statement caused a great sensation today. As he talked with the CONSTITUTION reporter concerning it he nervously paced up and down his spartment and was bitter in his denunciation of its author.
"It is the most wicked fabrication conceivable, and I cannot believe my wife wrote or dictated it. It must have been given out by her family. My wife's whole conduct has been such as to make me believe that she is either insane or under coercion. In her statement she is made to say that she had a slight acquaintance with me abroad: that when she parted from me she never saw nor heard from me until I returned to this country-a period of three years—yet three days after I arrived in Boston she married me. Does this seem reasonable? This whole affair, singularly enough, grew out of the mistake of a telegraph operator. When I was in Athens I received a letter from my daughter's mother. hinting that if no others had claims upon me, the barrier which had so long separated us had been swept away, and we might be reunited. To this I received a reply wishing me all happlness, and now wha she was about to tell me could not be told. It was for the purpose of seeking my daughter and her mother that brought me to America, and it was while in the nervous state produced by this incident that I married Miss Mack. When they heard of my marriage to Miss Mack all my friends asked me if I had lost my senses entirely. I want it distinctly understood that I cast no imputations upon my wife, but verily believe she is either insane or ance Union.

CHICAGO, March 17.—The National Woman's Christian Temperance union issued an address today to the brewers, distillers, rectifiers, wholesale dealers, and saloon keepers. The address is in accordance with a resolution adopted at the snnual convention, held in Minneapolis, last October. The address is in the form of a plea, and the people to whom it is directed are addressed at the opening as "brothers." The address says:

plea, and the people to whom it is directed are addressed at the opening as "brothers." The address says:

We have never until now come with the united voices of White Ribbon women to that small fraction of men who make and sell poisonous drinks against which are a single poisonous drinks against which are a single poisonous drinks against which are so that the same time so steal away the brain that ought to guide those manly arms, that they are no longer woman's shelter and protection, but her worst enemy. We bring our plea then straight to the source of woman's direct calamity and sorrow, and lay it at your feet. By the testimony of courts and juries, the liquor traffic is the cause of eighty per cent of all crime and ninety per cent of all paperism in this country. We know you say, "it is a great industry and pays enormous revenues to the state," but we know, also, that for every dollar it puts into the public treasury two have to be paid out in securing the trial of criminals it creates and in maintaining the paupers it produces.

The address finally says:

We have here addressed the manufacturer and wholesale dealer, as well as the dispenser of strong drink, because we think an undue shere of denunciation has falsen on the saloon keeper, who is but the cat's paw to rake out of the fire chestauts of the rich man back of him. Our observation teaches us that the slock and fixtures of the saloon usually belong to the brewer, d stiller, or wholesale dealer, who sets up in business some man, ignorant and poor, who sells what the capitalist furnishes. Youngstown, O., March 17.—During the right two freight trains on the New York, Pennsylvania and Ohio, crews being new men, who had taken the places of strikers, while coming into the city were stoned. The missiles broke the lamps and damaged the cars to some extent, but injured no one. The striking yadmen disclaim any connection with the affair. The crews were afraid to return during the night and were held here until this morning, when they were sent out to Cleveland with freight trains. A strikers' committee called at a boarding house where several new employes were and demanded that the "scabs," as they termed them be "fired," and the demand was acceded to. Some freight is being moved in the Pennsylvania and Pittsburg and Western yards (day. The Striking Railroaders.

THE MURDER AT EDEN'S. One of the Bald Knob bers Makes a

Ozark, Mo., March 17.—Eleven members of the Bald Knobbers organization were arrested and brought here yesterday, making nineteen in all under arrest and confined here. These prisoners are believed to include the leading spirits of the gang, and also a majority of the masked band concerned in the murder of William Eden and Charles Greene last Friday night. Dave Walker was the leader, or commander-in-chief, as he is called, of the Bald Knobbers. He is a married man and a member of the Baptist church, and is among those arrosted, as also are C. O. Simmons, Baptist preacher; Joseph Hyde and William Abbotts, members of the Baptist church. The other prisoners are generally farmers, and most of them are married, ranging in age from 19 to 54 them are married, ranging in age from 19 to 54 years.

Joseph Inman, one of the arrested, made a confession yesterday afternoon, giving much information to the authorities regarding the organization and telling how the killing of Grene and Eden came about. He said that on last Friday night some thirty or ferty members of the Baid Knob company, to which he belonged, were called together by Dave Walker, its chief, to go down to Swan creek and pound out some illicit whisky which was being sold. When the party got near Eden's house some of the young men proposed to go there and have some fun and started for the heuse, headed by Walker, a son of Chief Walker. The latter called them back and tried to persuade them not to go, but they gave no heed to the advice or commands, and went to Eden's house, where they smashed in the doers and windows, and killed young Eden and Greene. William Walker was shot in the assault on the house, and left his shotgun and mask in Eden's yard. He was carried home by his father, and is now believed to be concealed in the woods. He is said to be seriously if not fatally wounded, having received a ball in the groin, supposed to have been fired by the clder Eden when his doors were torn dows.

As soon as this confession was made Sheriff Johnson handcuffed the men most seriously or ministed by Inman and they were greatly overcome when they heard that Inman had confessed. Preacher Simmons was one of these who attacked Eden's house. A strong guard has been placed over the prisoners, as it is apprehended that the Bald Knobbers will attempt to rescue them. Inman has been sent to S ringfield jail at his own urgent request, he being in mortal terror of being lynched. He says he joined the organization under protest, being forced at the muzzle of a shotgun with a rope round his neck to swear allegiance to the deadly fraternity. He has had no sympathy with the band and has attended their meetings because he was afraid to refuse to do so. It is believed that the arrest of these men and their trial wil

The Arguments for a New Trial for the Anarchists.

Ottawa, Ill., March 17.—The supreme court states that the hearing of arguments on motion for a new trial for the seven condemned Haymarket anarchists began this morning. The courtroom was crowded with spectators. Chief Justice Scott was absent, but all other members of the court were in their places. Leonard Swett opened the argument on behalf of the condemned men, but his plea was disappointing. His line of argument was that the evidence produced on the trial was not worthy of credence. He occupied half an heur in emphasizing the point that the evidence of Witness Gilmer was contradictory and unworthy of belief. As soon as he finished Mr. Swett left the court room. Mr. Ingram followed for the state and made a stronger and more effective speech even than he made in the trial in the lower courts. Mr. Zeinder followed for the anarchists, which closed the argument for the day.

At the tap of the train of a ten cent circus parade a throng of half-clad, half fed, dirty little loafing ragamuffin darkies of all sizes and sexes, from little toddling boys to half grown girls will assemble and form a procession. Every night when the city is wrapt in slumber these seekers hunt, in pairs, searching the sidewalks and gutters for such articles of value as may have been lost during the day. From this they drift into pilfering and sneak thieving and wind up in the chaingang. There is nothing worse needed than a house of correction in Macon.

Now again, on Tuesday night, at Brushy, a little village eight miles from here, the store house of Bell & Bro. was broken open, the safe blown, and about one hundred and forty dollars stolen. The work in all these robberies are so similar that one cannot but come to the conclusion that the same parties did all the work. "Yes, how very strange,' she said, and while we both looked the carriage turned a corner and, swiftly, yet gradually too, the transone shaft or beam of the cross was shortened, the npright proportionally lengthened, the whole became more clearly defined, and before us in startling vividness, hung obliquely in the sky, a blazing Roman cross, its base reaching almost to the horizon line, the disc of shadow still vibrating across the sun's center, much as I have seen it in a partial eclipse This was no dim, vague, illusory phantom, but distinct form. This interest has in-creased very largely in the last few years, and now there are, for this year, large contracts for stone for Cincinnati, Chattanooga, Atlanta and other places. Men from Scotland are expected every day. There is not a vacant house in the town, although there were several new build ings put up last year and some this year. The place needs twenty new buildings now. If a man had thirty or forty cabins, he could readily rent them. We need some energetic man who has the money to supply the place with needed houses. And yet not one person in fifty is free from blood poisoning in some form. Every moment of the life, whether awake or asleep, a million poisonous animals, invisible to the naked eye, are feeding upon the very elements that make and sustain life.

These are facts - they are solemn truths and they demand the most serious attention. These germs must be killed; they must be annihilated. But how? Prot. GREAT ELEPHANT DRIVE.

AN INTERESTING STORY OF AD-VENTU E IN INDIA.

As Unparalleled Event in the History of Elephan Capture - a Revd of 136 Successfully Impounded After a Support Reustance - Forming Lines of Fre Aronact the Captives.

It has already been reported that Mr. G. Sanderson, the superintendent of the government Kheddahs at Daces, had made an unprecedented capture of elephants in the Garo hills last The details of this exploit are described by Mr. Sanderson himself in the Eng-

"The 14th we began the drive in the forenoon. The elephants were, contrary to our expectation and to their habits hitherto, all together in one large gathering. To arrive at the stockade they had first to reach a small level plateau on the top of a hill, from which they were to be deflected to their left down a slope, at the foot of which was the stockade, well screened in the jungle, The two guiding palisades or wings, converging to the gate of the stockade, were run up the hillside the distance of some 200 yards, at fifty yards apart. Three fire lines were made through the jungle across the spare be-tween the guiding pate-ades, one joining them at their extreme ends, one half way down, and one about sixty yards from the gate. On these lines dry grass was stacked in bundles and hid-den by green leaves, reary to be fired when the clephants had crossed the paths. The drive was well managed the berd being kept together and not overdriven, which often causes a herd to break up into small parties. The wind favored us, and the elephants were got to the plateau pear the mo of the funnel like plateau near the ment of the lumer-like approach to the gate without very much truthele. Here the men closed in from all sides, directed by spies in the trees, as the grass was too high for these on foot to see what the elephants were doing. As the herd trooped past my post at the end of one of the palisades it seemed as if the procession would never end. My veteran gun beauer, Jaff., whispered they My veteran gun besser. Jaff, whispered they were as the losects of the forest. Tuskers, females and young elephants of all sizes buddled along, those in the rear finally showing a good deal of apprehension as the hunters be-gan to close 14 on them. The moment the last had crossed the outermost fire line the spies sounded their rattles, and as if by magic (I had not spared 4 few dozen match boxes among the men), a cracking line of flame ex-tended along the hil side, joining the extreme ends of the palisade and cutting off retreat. Immediately the hitherto compara-Immediately the hitherto compara-tive silence of the drive was broken by yelling and blank firit g from all sides, and the ele-phants hurried forward in a crowd, no longer lowing any leader, but each striving not to be the last. They soon crossed the second fire line, and at a signat from a fog-horn—barely sudible in the din of elephants and man—active fellows raced forward from both ends with

"The third line was similarly fired when the herd had passed, and now the fun waxed." the herd had passed, and now the fun waxed fast and furious Some of the elephants went into the stockade at once, but a huge male with the right tusk only (such elephants are called Gunesh, and certain castes of Hindus reverence them) took up his position in the gateway, which was only eleven feet wide, and no elephant could pass him. The scene now was extrao dusary, and Colonel and Mrs. Graham Smith, from a platform in a tree near, had an excellent view of it. The space between the converging palisades was tightly packed by a strugging mass of elephants for many yards from the gate. Every vestige of many yards from the gate. Every vestige of jungle had disapposted, and the men were skirmishing with black cartridges and torches of blazing grass up to within twenty yards or less of the elephants, and a shower of sticks less of the elephanes and a shower of sticks and clock was kevt up over the palisades by these cutside. The roaring of the youngsters of the herd, which were being trampled and squeezed, combined with the noise of rattices, guns, and of the fire consuming the jungle between the palisades in the direction whence the elephants had come, made it impossible to make one's self heard by any one, even at one's elbow. I fired saveral charges of shot into the elbow. I fired several charges of shot into the rearmost of the elephants, though really I thought them little to blame for not moving on; it was not for want of will or pushing, as the argie of their bind legs as they bored des-perately into the mass before them mutely tes-tified: At last the opposition gave way; the Gunesh and others which were stopping the way were borne on ward into the stockade by the pressure behind, and the animals in the rear made renewed exertions to get away from the terrible sights and sounds so close behind them. Only one elephant broke back; she carcered through the men who escaped in the most marvelous manner; in her terror she went through the fire lines, a most unusual proceeding for an elephant. She unfortunately killed a man on the surround some two miles from the torches, and in a few seconds this line also was stockade, after which no more was seen of her. When I saw the elephants struggling before the gate I never believed that so many (136 as it turned out) could by any possibility get into a stockade 215 feet in circumference. The area was even less than that of a circle of similar circumferance as our stockades have thirteen straight sides of fitteen feet each and the gate side of twenty feet. We never expected our stockades would hold over 100 elephants; sixtyfive was the greatest number we had ever impounded before, though I must say they had plenty of room when the resistance was overcome and the final straggle to get into the stockade began. The thing seemed impossible after seeing the elephants balf covering a hillside or trooping along in a single file. One wave to the man who stood over the gate rope with his ax and the pond-rous gate came down on to the backs of the last few elephants, and as they struggled from under it and fell into po-sition it was quickly lashed by many willing "Immodiately everybody went to work to strengthen the stockade. It was never really in danger, but we made assurance doubly sure. A supplemental stockade was at once cummenced by barricading off twenty yards of the space between the guiding palisadesoutide the gate. The elephants were punded at 1 p. m., but it was not until 930 p. m. that all was ready. We then hauled up the gate and p. m., but it was not until 9.30 p. m. that all was ready. We then hauled up the gate and relieved them from the black hole-like confinement of the stockade by admitting them into the new one. It was filled at once, but really the crowd in the first stockade hardly seemed decreased. Early next morning we shut off some thirty-five elephants in the supplemental stockade by closing the gate, and the tame elephants were then admitted. and the tame elephants were then admitted, and by evening had secured this lot and re-moved and tied them up in the forest near. At night the gate between the stockades was At light the gate between the stockades was again raised to give the remainder room, and wild plaintain trees and other succulent, cooling fodder were supplied to them. By next morning we had hollowed out two tree tranks twenty feet long and pushed theirends through the timbers of the stockade, and by keeping men with bluckets carrying water from the Ganol stream, which flowed within a few yards of the stockade, we supplied the thirsty animals with plenty of cold, clear mountain water for which plenty of cold, clear mountain water for which they seemed heartily thankful, and which, in addition to drinking, they showered over their bodies. For the seventy nine elephants the men carned Rs 245 as a present among about seventy of them. The third day, the 17th, the last of the elephants was removed, and the last of the elephants was removed, and the whole number tied in a large clearing in the forest near. Here they are flow before me as I write, and in camp with them are numerous tame elephants. The elephants being loosed and taken to water, struggling at their pickets, or standing in diguified silence with thick cables around their necks and legs, anchoring them fore and at between trees, form a scene which ought to be painted. In a few days they will be marched down to the low country in squads by easy stages. I need bardly say that such a capture as 135 elephants was never mide be-of capture as 135 elephants was never made before, and we aser the our luck to the presence of a lack in the drive and to this being the jublice year. I intend to roll a large bowlder into the stockade by the help of our tame elephant, and to have an inscription cut on it recording the event of this unprecedented capture in the fiftieth year of her majesty's spign."

A OUTER BOOK. Hlanton Duncan Comes to the Front as Prophet. From the Louisville Commercial.

Colonel Blanton Duncan's new book is a strenge production. The purport of the work is to strenge production. The purport of the work is to show that the prophecies are only intended to be thoroughly understood a little in advance of their culmination by the races then living, who are to feel their effects. That they are to be literally fulfilled is shown from the remarkable fact that in 1638 a men of great intellect and scholarship did 698 a man of great intellect and scholarship did point out in the Apocalypse consecutive prophe-cies, which he interpreted to mean the destruction of the French monarchy in 1794, the bloody and blasphemous career of the French for sixteen years, olasphemous career of the French or states years, the the imprisonment of the pope for ten years, the second blow to the papacy in 1848, following the de-hronements and revolutions in Europe; the be-ginning of the Turkish wars in 1853, to be succeed-ed by others until the final destruction of Turkish and Moslem denomination at or about 1900, and the second advent of Christ a few years there-atter-preceded by the physical and other phenomena set forth in the prophecies—hailstones fity-six pounds in weight, earthquakes, etc., etc. Following in this elucidation the author shows that the physical phenomena of the past five years are the warping signs promised to the Christians that the fulfilment is at hand. The destiny of the Jews is portrayed and their great role in the latter days, Also the probable intent to use the negro race in America as the instruments to civilize, enlighten and Christianize 100.000,000 of African savages. From the Jewish writings and traditions, and the precises tatements of Christ, the prophets and the apostles there is prepared a knowledge of where the souls repose after death, no man ever having yet been received into heaven, as Christ stated. The proof of a realistic hell and eternal flery punishment is also shown from the fold and New Tes-WOMEN BOUND TO VOTE.

Dyspepsia and Constipation. Henry B. Archer, Receiver of Taxes of the City of Yonkers, N. Y., says of BRANDRETH'S

For the past ten years I have been using BRANDRETH'S PILLS for self and family. We find them a sovereign remedy for indigestion and constipation, taking one or two every night for ten days. They are also admirable blood purifiers, perfectly harmless but exceedingly effective as a cathartic. I first used them my self, particularly for biliousness and dyspepsia They relieved me in two weeks. I cheerfully recommend them.

Bigamy in Self-Defense. From the Pall Mall Gazette.

Mr. Justice Hawkins yesterday decided that bigany is no crime when a woman commits it in self defense. A poor woman who had married an habitual criminal when she was seventeen was deserted by him after the first baby was born. He had never made any provision for her, and in the intervals when he was not in prison he used to come heaft to her was provision for her, and in the intervals when he was not in prison he used to come back to her whenever she got a situation and compel her to keep him. The poor creature there-upon married a second husband, who undertook to protect her from the first, who was always threatening her. Husband No. 1 therefore gave her into custody for bigamy. When all this was proved Mr. Justice Hawkins became very excited, and de-clared that he regretted exceeding that the wo-man had been imprisoned one month waiting trial. He felt that he should be wanting in humanity if he were to order her to be imprisor ed for one sin gle hour beyond that time, and the sentence was that she be imprisoned for half an hour. The aunouncement was received with applause. Bigamy, therefore, is henceforth to be regarded as justifiable as a means of self protection. But would it not be better to amend the law of divorce?"

Disorders which Affect the Kidneys.

Are among the most formidable known. Diabetes, Bright's disease, gravel, and other complaints of the uripary organs, are not ordinarily cured in severe cases, but they may be averted by timely medication. A useful stimulant of the urinary glands has ever been found in Hostetters's Stomach Bitters, medicine which not only affords the requisite stimulus when they become inactive, but increases their vigor and secretive power. By increasing the activity of the kidneys and bladder, this medicine has the additional effect of expelling from the blood impurities which it is the peculiar office of those organs to eliminate and pass off. The Bitters is also a purifier and strengthener of the bowells, an invigorant of the stomach, and a matchless remedy for biliousness and fever and ague. It counteracts a tendency to premature decay, and sustains and comforts the aged and infirm.

An Ex-Governor Dying in Massachusetts

Prison.
From the Boston Record. In the hospital, ill with general debility, is another famous convict. His name is Moses—ex-Governor Moses, of South Carolina. This old culprit is pretty well broken down physically. He is an object of pity, for if he were set loose today he would be utterly unable to do anything for himself. He is a man of medium height, with hollow cheeks and sunken eyes. The officials say he has a consumptive tendency. Some one asked him a few days ago what was the cause of the breaking up of his health. He replied that it was the effect of opium, to which he had been addicted for many years. This may explain the consumption. Moses is the brightest man intellectually of all the pris oners. He has a wonderful command of language and of the facts stored in his brain. He was placed in the hospital because he was unable to work, and stends his time writing and reading. He is now making a translation of a few French novels, which he hopes to sell when he is released.

An Important Arrest.

The arrest of a suspicions character upon his general appearance, inovements of companion-ship, without waiting until he has robbed a traveler, fired a house, or murdored a fellow-man, is an important function of a shrewd detective. Even more important is the arrest of a disease which, if not checked, will blight and a disease which, if not checked, will blight and destroy a human life. The frequent cough, less of appetite, general languor or debility, pallid skin, and bedily aches and pains, announce the approach of pulmonary consumption, which is promptly arrested and perminently cured by Dr. Pierce's "Goldon Medical Discovery." Sold by druggists.

THE CONSTITUTION presents this morning the authentic report of the positive transfer of the Baltimore and Ohio system to new hands. The news as given by THE CONSTI-TUTION was received as absolutely exclusive and is not possessed by any other paper in the country, except one in New York, which telegraphed THE CONSTITUTION last night asking for its report which was sent. Thus the world is again scooped on the most important railroad deal on record. Our news is from headquarters and is given not as a rumor but a fact.

THE president has only a few more days in which to make six very important appointments-those of five interstate commerce commissioners, and that of a secretary of the treasury to succeed Mr. Manning. It is generally believed that the first named will be announced during the present week, and that Colonel W. H. Morrison will cer tainly be one of the five. As to the treasury Mr. Fairchild, the first assistant, seems to have the call for appointment to the secre taryship, though the office will probably not be filled for several weeks yet, as the vacancy will not exist for about a month.

PURE lard is one of the things that are often heard off but seldom seen in the present day. The adulteration of articles of food has reached such perfection that few people know what they are buying, but they generally think that it is an easy matter to get just what they want. Cotton seed oil has revolutionized the manufacture of lard and now forms the greater part of most of that article as it is in commerce The advantage of this adulteration is in the fact that without it, others of a less pure and objectionable kind would be used. The Cotton Seed Oil Trust company of New York, with a capital of $50,000,000, controls the entire cotton seed oil business of this country and from it the lard establishments are supplied, none of them manufacturing their

THE Masons of the state of New York have distinguished themselves by their prompt action in ridding the order of some objectionable characters who were rushed in in a manner which has cost the rushers dearly. Tom Gould, a notorious hise keeper, and Jere Dunn, murderer and gambler, were admitted into one of the New York city lodges a roar ago, and the decent element of the lodge refused to attend its meetings. It soon became an easy matter to admit almost anybody who might apply for membership. Dunn and Gould passed sevoe Commandery, Knights Templar Here they were promptly blackballed and the scandal began. A commission was ap-pointed to investigate the matter, and in its report the grand master of the state with-drew the charter of the lodge which had first admitted the two notorious chara: ters, who were expelled from the order. But this was not all. Nine members of the lodge who were proven to be instrumental in introducing these two worthies into the lodge were also expelled, it having been shown that they were cognizant of the odious reputation of the two men, when their name were before the lodge, for membership. The Masons of New York deserve credit for their prompt and effective action in ridding themselves of two such characters.

A Queer Democrat in the Cabinet.

There are wild rumors from Washington to the effect that Secretary Manning was compelled to resign on account of some disagreement with Mr. Cleveland. We place no confidence in such rumors, because it is well known that Secretary Manning's resignation was the result of ill health.

At the same time, the fact cannot be con cealed that there are dissensions in the cabinet brought about by the queer pranks of Mr. Endicott, the secretary of war. If all reports are true, the secretary of war has got himself into difficulties from which he can only escape by tendering his resignation to the president.

Our Washington correspondent hinted briefly at the situation yesterday. The trouble is in the office of the surgeon general of the army. It appears that one Jedediah H. Baxter, a well known republican lonter and Blaine heeler, has been for some time a candidate for the place of surgeon general. He was a candidate for the place when Garfield was elected, and afterwards when Arthur came to be president. He would probably have been appointed but for Garfield's assassination, but when Arthur became president General Hawley, of Connecticut, and others had no trouble in convincing him that Baxter was not the proper person for the place.

Baxter is a citizen of Vermont, and a rampant republican. He is the chief medical purveyor of the army, and for years he has used the influence that his office gives him in favor of himself and the republican party. He is a politician and a wire puller, and he has never failed in his efforts to secure the success of the republicans to look after his own personal interests. During the last campaign he was president of the local Blaine and Logan club in Washington, and he made himself conspicuous as a republican partisan.

In consequence of this, it was suppose that he would have no chance of promotion and preferment under the Cleveland administration. But Baxter was very shrewd. When Mr. Cleveland was installed as presi dent, he was given to understand that the genial political doctor would be glad to be made the "physician of the white house." His services, bowever, were not accepted in that quarter, but he made himself agreeable to Endicott, the new secretary of war, and was very soon established in the good graces

At this time General Marray, who is de scribed as "a mild and an upright old gentleman," was the surgeon general of the army. Murray, mild as he was, had a natural contempt for Baxter, and, as a result war secretary, who seemed to be infatuated with the republican heeler. Finally General Murray was retired, and when this occurred Endicott, a cabinet officer of a democratic administration, suggested to the president that Baxter, a red hot republican partisan, was the proper person to be made surgeon general. Mr. Cleveland gave the matter some attention, and then appointed Colonel John Moore.

Under these circumstances, a sensitive cabinet officer would have resigned, but Secretary Endicott concluded that he could do a better part by Baxter to hold on. He did hold on, and the result is thus described by the trustworthy Washington correspondent of the Boston Post:

Thus, Dr. Baxter again failed of realizing his ambition, but, with the secretary still on his side, he resolved that, although not surgeon general in name, he would be so in fact, and this determina tion on his part was one of the first intimations which the new surgeon general received when he arrived in the city. It would have been fortunate for Mr. Endicott if he could have seen his way to yield gracefully to the wishes of the president in speciating an officer of such sterling worth as General Moore, and to have given him all neces-sary support in introducing needed reforms in the distration of the department. General Moore was not a little surprised on the occasion of his first interview with the secretary to be told that the assistant surgeon general, Dr. Huntington, the executive officer of the department during the past four years and a most capable and reliable officer, was objectionable to Mr. Endicott, and that he must be relieved from duty in Washington at once. General Moore protested that he should be allowed to become familiar with the duties of the office be-fore being deprived of the aid of Dr. Huntington, who had been practically surgeon general since General Murray retired, and said he would consent to his removal at the carllest possible moment.

Mr. Endicott replied that Dr. Huntington must go at once, and his orders were made out as soon as a place was found for him, which, strange to say, was the remote locality of San Diego barracks, Cal. The only offense of Dr. Huntington was that he had opposed the promotion of Dr. Baxter. Nothing else could possibly be alleged against him. Genelse could possibly be alleged against him. Gen-eral Moore had not recovered from this surprise when he learned that he was not to be allowed the liberty usually permitted to heads of staff depart ments to choose his own immediate assistants and subordinates, but that the secretary had ordered that Dr. Greenleaf, a personal adherent of Dr. Bax-ter, who had written a letter to the president in the autumn asking Baxter's appointment, should come to Washington and serve as assistant surgeon general in place of Huntington. The surgeon gen eral and the assistant surgeon general have their desks in the same room, and must be in confiden-tial relation. General Moore then realized that there was a purpose at the war department to limit and hamper him rather than to help him, and that it would be useless to attempt to exercise his au-thority as surgeon general under such circumstances. He saw no other way but to go to the president, and to say that if Mr. Cleveland, after honoring him with the place of surgeon general, did not wish to allow him to act as surgeon gen eral, he must ask to be entirely relieved of the d ties of the office. This is the whole story, and it will easily be seen in what a situation the presiden

Certainly this is a pretty state of affairs. Mr. Endicott would do well to retire. We have no doubt that the president would be relieved if he had an opportunity of accept ing the resignation of a cabinet officer who seems determined to turn an important office over to a rampant republican partisan.

Where Justice Nods. It was a cold day, last week, when Postmaster Flory, of Tulip, found himself sandwiched between a deputy marshal and a blizzard.

The United States commissioner at Inlianapolis wanted to see Postmaster Flory. He was so anxious to see him that he sent his deputy for him. When the commissioner looked into the case he felt that it was his duty to viadicate ter of Tulip was a withered old man of four score, with bayseed in his patriarchal locks, and more general debility to the square inch than had ever been seen in that courtroom. The commissioner sized it all up, the hay seed, white hair and general debility, and then he considered the facts.

The testimony showed that Postmaste Flory, of Tulip, with a shocking and shame less contempt for the statute in such case made and provided, had sold a few dollar worth of stamps for less than their face value. The wretched prisoner's only de fense was that the stamps had come to him in barter, and not from the government. "I am afraid he is a gone coon," muttere the commissioner. With a stern look he in formed the prisoner that he must give $200 bond for his appearance at the next term of the court. Over this a great flurry arose. The [postmaster begged with tears in his eyes not to be sent to jail. He declared that he could not give the bond without going to Tulip. The magistrate relapsed into a brown study and stared thoughtfully at the venerable outlaw. Finally he told him to return home and fix up his bond. Here a new difficulty presented itself. The aged criminal frankly informed the court that he had only sixty-five cents in his pocket, and the fare to Tulip was three dollars. How was he to get back to the bosom of his fam ily? Clearly such a state of affairs called for extra judicial methods. There was a whispered consultation between the officials. The bat was passed around, and the required sum to purchase a railroad ticket was made up and handed the old man. Unguarded and alone Postmaster Flori departed for Tulip. If he is wise he wil make the most of his few remaining days of freedom. He has caught Justice napping this one time, but when her buzz saw mood comes on there will be the mischief to pay in the Tulip postoffice. Postmaster Flory is doomed.

Is It a Black Art?

The mind reader is abroad in the land and the mesmerist, the hypnotist and th faith cure man appear to have it all their own way.

So far as the animal magnetism part of this business is concerned there is very little mystery. By following certain rules almost any person will find it possible to exercise remarkable control over others. These rules are as follows:

The operator must be a person of positive character and plenty of confidence. He must obtain the consent of his subjects to be quiet. Each subject stands with the soles of his feet flat on the floor, with his eyes closed. In about fifteen minutes the opera tor passes both hands open, with palms toward the subject, from forehead to knees within three or four inches from the subject say half a dozen times during fifteen or twenty-five minutes.

Now for the first test. The operator confidently takes the right hand of the subject in his right. He places his left hand on the subject's forehead, with the left thumb just above the nose and between the eyes and the right thumb between! the third and fourth fingers, and pressing gently with both thumbs, he instructs the subject to close his eyes tightly, after which he declares in commanding tone that they are shut fas and beyond the power of the subject to open If success follows this test the operator may remove his hands and produce the effect at will. He will then find it easy to cause the subject to sing ludicrous songs or make speeches. At the conclusion of the experiment the simple word "Right!" with a snar of the finger, will; restore the subject. It must be understood that the subject never obeys a command which is against his conscience. He may sip water and call it vinegar, but if he is a total abstainer the operator cannot make him take wine under the impression that it is water. Some subjects cannot be controlled at the first sitting. There is no truth whatever in the stories told of the operator's influence over a subject last ing an indefinite time after the sitting. It is perhaps unnecessary to inform our readers that this queer business has nothing in it that is of benefit to mankind. Medi cal men are still divided in opinion as to whether it is a real condition or a delusion But there is a graver objection still. It is charged that mesmerizing and mind reading come under the head ofdiabolism and witchcraft. Only the other day the Rev. Dr. John Hall, of New York, this position in a sermon, and de clared that the evil practice of the magicians and witches described in the Bible had been revived by these latter day students of the black art. We prefer to believe that this is taking too serious a view of the matter. The subject may not be worthy of study and investigation, but if there is any positive evil in it nothing has developed to show it. THERE will be no public record of the proxy marriage of August Spies and Miss Nina Van Zandt. The county clerk in Chicago has returned the license to the justice who performed the ceremony. The anarchists held an infor mal reception in the cage of the jail the othe day, and Miss Van Zandt was among those present. Mrs. Parsons also was there, and wa the lioness of the occasion as she had a jail experience of her own to talk about.

THE probability is that Endicott would im prove and strengthen the democratic admir istration by sending in his resignation.

Better for the Reporters.

From the Boston Herald. The reporters who went to look after th Bay State club dinner Saturday afternoon were surprised that plates had been laid for them very near the center of the head table, where they co comfortably hear everything that was said. Such a change from the usual order was so delightfut that they could hardly eat anything, but this didu' matter, as they were there for work and not fe eating and drinking. It is the Boston custom in cases of this kind to put reporters in a corner nea the door or to exclude them altogether from the feast, but the practice in other cities, foreign and at home, seems at last to have been brought to the at home, seems at last to have been prought to the notice of our dinner committees. Reporters would rather stay away altogether, but the reading pub-lic has a right to know what the distinguished men say, and dinner committees cannot afford to treat the public shabbily.

About the close of business hours yesterday,

The first news of Lawton's defalcation which reached this city came in a telegram sent to given him by a Constitution reporter last night and it is needless to say that he was greatly surprised at it. He stated that the last time he heard from Mr. Lawton was last week concerning some of the affairs of the company.

The officers of the company are Osgood Welsh, president, W. E. Lawton secretary and treasurer, and W.

P. Elliott agent and manager. The capital stock is $200,000, divided into eight thousand shares of $25 each. Of these Lawton owns, or did own until very recently, over four thousand shares. Mr. Elliott stated that this will have no effect upon the affairs of the company.

"The company is now in a pretty prosperous condition," added Mr. Elliott, "and is making money. I do not know whether there have ever been any dividends declared upon the stock, but I know the affairs of the company are in pretty good shape."

The career of the Gate City Gaslight company has been a checkered one. It was organized in 1883, or 1884, by Colonel E. F. Hoge, the founder of the Journal, who represented pearance has created a great deal of apprehention, and it is generally believed that he is makrapt. He left the office Tuesday after-noon as usual to go to his home on the Hudson and has not been seen since. Today his casher states that several attachments were obtained, but outside of that nothing is known. The amount of his liabilities are estimated at about $1,000,000. Lawton is a widower and sole representative of the firm, his brother, who was associated with him, having died same time ago. Rufus I. Kirkland, Lawton's eashier, states

Rufus I. Kirkland, Lawton's cashier, states that Tuesday Lawton withdrew all his funds from the different banks in which he had dewisted and took the money with him. Lawton, before his departure, destroyed all stubs, thecks and papers of every kind from which any infermation could be secured as to the disperition of funds. Joseph D. Jones placed in Lawton's care on Tnesday, on behalf of the company, $12,000. This is also gone.

Mr. Kirkland states that Tuesday he had an interview with Lawton at Broadway and Wall threats and that Lawton requested him to go with him to the officers of the Third National lank and introduce him. This he did. Lawton also asked him to execute a blank warranty for a deed for conveyance of real estate in New Yersey and to meet him at the New York hotel. He met Lawton there with a blank deed and both went to the Grand Central depot. Lawton told Kirkland he intended to leave the city by the train; that he had drawn out all the money on deposit, and har he was ruined, he did not know what to de, and har he was ruined, he did not know what to hat he money on deposit, and hat he was ruined; he did not know what to do, and he would probably commit suicide.

Lawton further said that he had exhausted all Lawton further said that he had exhausted all his resources. He left Kirkland to take the train. One of the attachments was issued at the instance of the Chemical, Ammoniase and fill company. The company delivered to Lawton promissory notes of the value of $120,000 in irast to discount the notes and hold the proceeds for the company's benefit. In addition, he received $3,000 in money. He discounted the notes, kept proceeds, and also retained the meney and converted it to his own use.

Associates of W. E. Lawton look upon his disappearance as a part of a gigantic awindle and believe that he sailed on one of Wednesday's steamers. He has a brother in Sussex, Eng., and it is supposed that he has gone there. Several different parties had put sureties in his control, and before his departure he converted everything into cash and drew out all fits bank accounts and got a boy to help remove four or five valises, which seemed to be lightly filled. His credit was high and he was rated at over $1.000,000 by commercial agencies.

To the Patrons of the Gate City Gas Light Company: In view of the recent troubles of Mr. Lawton, late secretary and treasurer of this company, I wish to state that the business of the company will in no wise be affected. The question to be decided by the court is simply as to the ownership of that part of the stock formerly held by Mr. Lawton, and the liabilities of the company will not be increased a dollar, no matter which way the courts may decide. I wish to assure the public that this is simply an outside matter, and that they may rest easy that the company will continue to supply its patrons as before. [Signed] W. P. Elliott, Agent.

FELL FROM A WINDOW.

Serious Accident to Mr. Wesley Neal-Extent of His Injuries. About two o'clock this morning the whole neighborhood near THE CONSTITUTION office was alarmed by the most agonizing screams, which seemed to emanate from some one lying upon the pavement in front of Maddox & Rucker's warelouse, corner Forsyth and Alabama streets. A Constitution reporter rushed to the spot to find Mr. Wesley Neal, a tvery prominent young man of this city, lying prostrate upon the granite pavement. He was in his night clothes. His cries were heartrending. He was evidently in great agony, for he screamed for help. Questions were plied in quick succession, but the unfortunate young man could make no intelligent answers. Finally he told his name, but he could tell nothing whatever about his accident. He did not know where he was, could not give any account of the way he came to be where he was. Some one suggested that he had fallen out the window. Immediately the reporter repaired to the room just above where he lay. The door was locked, and it was a hard matter to arouse the young man who was occupying it. Firally a young man, in his nightclothes, oponed the door. He was asked about Mr. Neal, but, being somewhat dazed, it was some little time before he could give intelligent replies to the ques-tions asked him. He stated that Mr Neal and he had slept together. He did not know when his bedfellow had got up. The last he saw of him he was lying at his side sound asleep. An open window was found, and this gave an explanation of the occurrence. Evidently Mr. Neal had opened the window in his sleep and stepped out. His escape from instant death was almost miraculous. The window through which he stepped is His escape from instant death was almost miracullous. The window through which he stepped is about twenty feet above the pavement, Just in front of the window was a chair. Mr. Neal must have stepped upon this chair and then lumped out of the window.
How long he had lain in the street it was impossible to determine. He must have been stunned by the fall. As soon as he regained consciousness his pain was so acute as to compel him to scream.
A telephonic summons was immediately sent to police headquarters and to Dr. Nicholson. In a short while these summons were answered by several officers. A few minutes later the doctor arrived. Before the doctor's arrival, however, the young man wasplaced upon a hastily improvised stretcher and borne up stairs to the room he had occupied. His riend was almost overcome with grief at the sight which met his gaze, Mr. Neal was placed upon the bed.
While the men were carring Mr. Neal to the room he screamed that his leg was killing him. Apparently his thigh was crushed and his leg broken in several places.

GLADSTONE'S SPEECH

TO THE YORKSHIRE MEMBERS OF PARLIAMENT.

The fx-Premier at a Dinner Gives His Views of Mat-ters in General, but Particularity to Legislation for the Helief of Ireland—Other Interest-ing News from All Parts of Europe.

LONDON, March 18.—Mr. Gladstone delivered a speech at a dinuer last hight given by York-shire members of the house of commons, He began by referring to his belief that there was a growing epinion in favor of home rule even among its former opponents. He counselled Lord Salisbury to weaken from his step if he wished to banish his inightmare. The premier, however, said Mr. Gladstone, appeared determined to remain asleep. Mr. Gladstone maintained that it was impossible to deal with other questions until the Irish question had been mined to remain asleep. Mr. Gladstone maintained that it was impossible to deal with other questions until the Irish question had been eleared out of the way. He said:

I wish to say a word regarding what I consider to be my obligation toward the different parties and the elections. We have to deal with it. In starting we are agreed that Ireland asks effective self-government in affairs, properly and exclusively Irish, subject to the unquestionable supremacy of the imperial parliament. Should she extend her demands beyond this limit, I frankly tell you I could no longer promote her cause, but so long as the demands she utters are just and within the bounds of moderation, I will stand fast to her cause during what remains to me of political life. (Cheers.)

It is our duty to acknowledge whatever approaches the conservatives make toward the recognition of the real state of facts and of the prospects before us. Major Sanderson recently said that a settlement of the Irish question must emants from the Irish people. That statement is connently satisfactory. It proves that in the minds of extreme men there is a movement in the right direction. We should leave an open way for the conservatives to pursue the right policy in this matter. I had hoped they would deal liberally with Ireland, but they missed the chance when they had it. I know that they receive our suggestions of assistance as insults, but the lessons of all great reforms teach them that they ought to receive our well-meant offers to assist them segainst the refractory members of their party with patience and tolerance.

Turning to the unionists: I accept Sir George Trevelyan's desire for reunion as a proof of the loyalty of his heart towards us, but I so far differ with him that if the tories are able to settle the question satisfactorily, I wish them with all my heart to doso. The present schlam in our party is useful, showing that we, as a political body, are placing national and material questions (above party considerations. While there is so much talk which will be in the nature of improvements in the proposals we have made. I may say my mind has been upon the subject every day since the last session.

As regards the fhain proposals we had in view, it is futile to talk of receding, but in regard to those improvements, it will be a pleasurable duty to seek them. I cherish the hope that there are points on which an improvement might be made on the proposals we submitted to parliament, that these points will mutiply as we draw nearer the time which is still distant, when we can be in a condition to give any practical effect to our political views. One point which helped our defeat, and specially caused a difficulty among our best friends, was the proposal to use the imperial credit to buy out Irish landlords. Well, it me say this: I have the firmest conviction that we never proposed to risk a sixpence. But that does not decide the case. My duty is to consider whether the proposal is essential to any sound plan of the policy for Ireland. I at ence tell you this and make confession that in our proposal in behalf of Irish landlords, we went to the farthest point in their behalf, and upon two grounds partly, because we knew that thay had been the petted children of England, who now, as it were, is turning upon them in some degree, and partly because we wished to give our opponents every inducement for agreat and speedy settlement of the question, I cherish the hope that it will be perfectly possible to devise a plan for the safe purchase of estates in Ireland, whereby landlords will receive perfect security with respect to the price of his property without trenching on the imperial credit, but any such plan known to me requires as a vital condition, the institution of a real Irish government, able to speak and act for Ireland, without which I fail to see how ostir a step toward the adoption of such aplan. (Cheers)

Finally, whilst continually considering how to improve on our plans, let us, above all things, be careful on no account to depart, under attraction, sed

Each new cardinal was accompanied by two others. Cardinals Bonaparte and Zigler and Cardinal Gibbons by Cardinals Meteers and Mozzella. They proceeded, and bowing twice kissed the pope's foot and hand, received the pope's double embrace and then retired. They again advanced to the pope to receive the hat, which was brought in on a silver salver. Each cardinal knelt as he came before the pope and the hood of his robe was placed over his head by an attendant. Then the pope taking the large red hat placed it on the kneeling cardinal, recting his hand on it while he read the following words in a clow, distinct voice:

NEW YORK STOCKS.

Stocks as Reported at the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, March 1 .- Today was the dullest day in the stock market so far this year, and tranactions being almost entirely of a professional character and fluctuations extremely narrow, there was little or nothing of interest to report. For-eigners after buying steadily for the past week changed front today, as they got no response from this market, and sold moderately in the forenoon. The offerings were quietly absorbed however, although quotations yielded slightly, but the market was weak at no time today. Richmond and West Point was the only stock which made any approach to activity, and it was strong at midday on runcers that Mr. Hayes, of the Missouri Facific, was to be elected president of the company, but upon a denial of this it afterward reacted. The news of the day was very meagre and not of a character to affect values, but the market showed a firm undertone thoughout. The opening was weak at declines from last evening's final figures, extending up to % per cent. The market was very quiet and further declines were made in the early trading. In the rally which followed Western Union and Richmond and West Point became couspicuous, but dudness intervened and fluctuations nearly ceased. There was a short period of activitivity and firmness in the afternoon, but it soon died away and the remainder of the day the market continued dull and fluctuations close, being steady at slight changes from the opening figures. Sales aggregated 135,000 shares.

Exchange duli but steady at 480%@487%.. Money easy at 3@5, closing offered at 2½. Sub-treasury balances: Coin $134.501,000; currency $18,915,000. Governments dull and rather heavy: 4s 12834; 3s 100% State bonds dull but firm.

Receipts since September Same time last year...... Showing a decrease... NEW YORK, March 17-C. L. Green & Co., in their report on cotton futures today, say: Commencing with a continuation of favorable advices from abroad, the demand was good and the cost in creased some 8@9 points, and was pretty well held until recovering orders had been filled. The advance, however, securing no further immediate stimulus, and a desire to take profits developing, the offering increased sufficiently to cause a reac-tion, and at the close prices were a only a fraction above last evening. The general undertone, however remains quite confident, and secures good support in the favorable tenor of foreign advices and the strong position at the south, both as regards supplies and cost. Local spots are sparingly offered.

THE CHICAGO MARKET,

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Special to The Constitution CHICAGO, March 17-The wheat market was quieter today and firmer. There was no news o any significance, and trading during most of the ression was of a local character. Few obtside or-ders were received. The market market opened at 84% for May, fell off to 80%, tut good busing caused a steady advance to 81%, then fell off to 80 and closed for the day at 81%. The other options were also relatively sceaffer. Receipts at eleven points aggregated 481,000 bushels, while clearing from New York aggregated $20,000 bushels, which fact helped to steady the market.

Corn ruled quiet during most of the session, but was firmer and closed 14,6% higher than yesterday, buying near the close being on a more libera scale. Receipts were larger, and estimated arrivals for tomorrow also show some increase. Oats were quiet and a shade firmer.

Mess pork was nominal. Lard declined 74@10c, rallied again, but finally ecceded and closed at inside prices.
Short ribs declined 25@27% c and closed at me met at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, Judge Mareball J. Clarke presiding. The case of M. Ball against the Richmond and Danville railrid company was concluded. The case was an exceedingly interesting one, the facts being that the plaintiff bought a ticket at the mion depot, which, when presented for fare, the conductor refused to receive on the ground that it was not good. Mr. Hall then offered the price of the ticket, which the conductor likewise declined to take. About four miles from Atlanta the train stopped and the plaintiff was compelled to leave the car and get off the train. This was Saturday night, and the next morning he walked back to Atlanta. He sought to reserve damages in the amount of $5,000. Hoke Smith made a powerful argument for the plaintiff, and Mr. Thomas Glenn responded in a singularly able argument for the company. company was concluded. The case was plaintiff, and Mr. Thomas Glenn responded in a singularly able argument for the company. The jury, after half an hour's consideration, returned a verdict for the defendant. The tase of E. W. Helland against Walter S. Withers was begun yesterday afternoon. This is a suit to set aside the decision of the master in chancery. The case will consume the greater part of to-day. At a c'clock p. m., the court adjourned to meet at 9 c'clock this morning.

Cheerful Talk of a Real Estate Man-A Boom Certain to Appear Shor ly -A Lively Demand for At-lanta Land-A Number of Lors Sold at Good Prices - Real Estate Notes.

"The boom is not here yet, but you may expect it to arrive any day," remarked a wide-awake real estate dealer yesterday afternoon to a reporter of THE CONSTITUTION. "How do you know?"

circuit cases was commenced in the supreme corrections. Just ce Blanford is still confined to his home by illness. "It is my business to know, and I am constantly studying the situation. I tell you that a big boom is imminent right here in Atlanta," The reporter burried on to have a word with Mr. Samuel W. Goode, who is always on the alert for incipient booms. He was found in his office, having just returned from a big sale which was held on Forsyth street, and he felt

"Considering the cold, disagreeable weather we had a fine attendance of buyers out today, and the competition among them was sharp. and the competition among them was sharp.

The bidding was animated and good prices were bad. The truth of the matter is there is a considerable stir in real estate and a boom is certain to come at no distant day."

(How short ways as to today?"

"How about your sale today?" "Lot No. 1 on Forsyth street, 25x90 feet, brought $2.985 and was knocked down to Eu-gene Black. It sold well, in my opinion. "Mr. T. B. Neal secured lot No. 2, on the same street, measuring 25x90 feet, and it cost others, and located on the same street, fetched $1,900 each, Mr. J. M. Arrowwood being the purchaser.

"Another lot, 60x60 feet, corner of Fairlie Another lot, 00x00 feet, corner of Fairlie and Poplar streets, sold for $3,600, Mr. John Falvey being the buyer. The total amount was $12,885. The bidders were very eager to buy, and we had no difficulty in disposing of the property."
"Mr. Goode, what do you thind about Atlants, any how?" queried the reporter.

"Well," replied the man of lands and titles, as he wheeled around his chair and looked the reporter in the eyes: "I am willing to give my views. I expected, ere this, to be able to report a full-fledged real estate exchange in Atlanta, ut since the committee on constitution and by-laws was appointed at the general meeting of the brokers at my office some weeks ago, no action has been taken save the framing of such rules and regulations as seemed advisable. Various attempts have been made to get a full meeting of the committee, but so far without success. The great reason for this failure is the very sudden and remarkable change in the local real estate market. Buyers are coming here from all sections and investing in real estate. A marked feature in this re-spect is, that persons from all parts of Georgia purchase property in Atlanta. It seems now that we can hardly avoid a 'boom.' Land com-panies and syndicates, individual and combined speculators, continually present themselves at the real estate offices and purchase after purchase is made in almost every direction in and around the city, until conviction seems to be general that Atlanta is to witness a very active market this spring. Certain movements on foot now, will, without doubt, greatly benefit the

"What enterprises are now in sight?" "What enterprises are now in sight?"
"There are a good many enterprises well under way and many others projected. The Piedmont fair association' seems a certainty. This means that the states of Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, the Carolinas, Florida and, others, are to have an annual fair at Atlanta. Citizens of this city propose to raise a fund sufficient to make success sure. This city has already appropriated money, enough to excet all the new. make success sure. This city has already appropriated money enough to erect all the necessary buildings in first-class style. The 'Atlanta Driving park association' is this week to select a site for the park and race track, which will be unexcelled anywhere, and its club house and other appointments will equal Chicago's best. The resiroads centering here will said the movement; the Jersey Breeders' association and the Bench and Poultry association will join in, and altegether, Atlanta will show up as fine racing, as good stock, cattle, poultry, etc., as the whole country affords. Add to these a magnificent display of our manufactures, timber, minerals display of our manufactures, timber, minerals and other resources, and we will have some-thing to attract visitors, not only to come and see us, but to induce them to live in this delightful climate and productive country. But this Piedmont Fair association and its accom-paniments make up only part of the good things in store for Atlanta

"Anything else in view?" "Yes, there are some important railway schemes which are certain to be consummated before long. THE CONSTITUTION referred this morning to the new route between Atlanta and Selma. This is a grand project. It is believed the Atlanta and Hawkinsville railroad will be completed this year. The Georgia, Carolina and Northern railroad seems also assured, to say nothing of the Atlanta, Mississippi and Atlantic which our people are determined to have built. Besides these railroads, this year will see several dummy lines of street railway in operation here. Our new million dellar capitol is almost ready for the roof. The technological school, with buildings, to cost over a hundred thousand dellars, will be established this year. The B'nai Brith asylum, to cost as much more will also be located in our midst, and the Young Men's Christian association building is now becompleted this year. The Georgia, Carolina Men's Christian association building is now being built at a like cost?

"Atlanta dirt is still worth something, Mr.

"I should say it was. Why the past week I have vainly tried to find an eligible corner lot, even at a fancy price, for a new bank with from a quarter to half a million dollars capital, the principal stockholders to be northern and western men. Not more than ten days ago one of our most prominent business men requested me to procure for him and his associates a site for a similar purpose. Only today I received a bona fide offer of $150,000 for the Markham house, which I was forced to refuse."
"You seem very hopeful about Atlanta's

'I am hopeful. Thus the prospect is good for Atlanta to have largely increased banking facilities. All our manufacturing establishments are making money, and some of them psying remarkably large dividends. New industries are being continually developed. Scores of beautiful and costly residences and buildings of various kinds are being erected,

After leaving Mr. Goode, the reporter met several real estate men, who talked in the same cheerful and confident strain. They, without exception, expect a boom in real estate within the next six weeks. Some of them believe the boom has already arrived.

REAL ESTATE NOTES. Mr. John Silvey's handsome residence has re-ceived the finishing touches and is now occupied Mr. P B. Muller, of Chicago, will go into the real estate business in Atlants the first of Apr 1. Work on the Y. M. C. A. building is progressing Rooms Yesterday—The Night Meeting.

Mr. C. H. Yatman, of Newark, New Jersey, who came to Atlanta to conduct a series of meetings, began his work at the Y. M. C. A hall yesterday afternoon. His Bible talk was one of great interest to those who were present. He spoke of the Bible containing thousands of promises or coins of different value, according to a man's need. His illustrations were apt and entertaining. After the services at the hall, Mr. Yatman went to the First Baptist church, and after the Rev. Dr. Kernard had finished his sermon, delivered an earnest address. In the evening at 8 o'clock he again spoke at the Y. M. C. A rooms. His topic, "Faith," was one adapted to the initial meeting of the series, and his division of Christians into two classes—"Big Faith" and "Little Faith"—was beautifully portrayed in the character of the twelve spies sent to view the land of Causan—Caleb and Joshua represented big faith while the ten others represented little faith. Mr. Yatman's pleasing manner and original way of presenting gospel truths has gained him great popularity wherever he has gone. This afternoon at 3 o'clock he will give another Bible talk, to which every one is invited. The meeting tonight will be open to every one. A large number will probably hear Mr. Yatman on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock a DeGive's opera bouse. Mr. Yatman on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock a DeGive's opera house.

TWO SMALL FIRES.

A Roof Scorched on Rawson street-A House

Two fire alarms were turned in yesterday, and the department responded promptly to each call. The first alarm was sent in about half past ten o'clock, from box 331, located or Whitehall street and Brotherton street. It was caused by an incipient fire at 175 Rawson street—a small frame dwelling occupied by John Davis; colored. The fire was caused by defective flue, and when the de-partment reached the building, the rof was in a blaze. Chief Joyner, who was the first to reach the burning building, extinguished the fire with a Babcock chemical fice extinguisher which he carries in his buggy. From the ton of a peachtree into which he From the top of a peachtree into which he climbed the chief scattered the contents of his hand extinguisher over the blaze so rapidly that water was not needed when the engines arrived The second alarm was sent in from box 17, located at the corner of Peachtree street and Merritts avenue, about a quarter after twelve. The fire was located in a four room house corner North wrenne and Fort street, and the building was entirely consumed because it was out of reach of water. The building belonged to Hutchison Bros., druggists, and was a total less. It was occu-pied by Louis Henderson.

Such a praise from such a paper, the leading organ of such a refined and stuck-up community, would by itself be a sufficient testimonial of the excellence of these minstrels; but to this can be added, as an echo, the opinions of the whole press, north and south. Everywhere the same verdict is rendered, "The best ever seen!" As says another exchange: "It is a real circus with four rings, an immense audience giggled, laughed, roared, guffawed and applauded to exhaustion, and fun folicked last and furious for nearly three hours."

If a Dyspeptic Will Take Simmons Liver Regulator.

"Up to a few weeks ago I considered myself the champion Dyspeptic of America. During the years that I have been afflicted I have tried almost everything claimed to be a specific for Dyspepsia in the hope of finding something that would afford permanent relief. I had about made up my mind to abandon all medicines when I noticed an indorsement of Simmons Liver Regulator by a prominent Georgian, a jurist whom I knew, and concluded to try its effects in my case. I have used but two bottles, and am satisfied that I have struck the right thing at last. I felt its beneficial effects almost immediately. Unlike all other preparations of a similar kind, no special instructions are required as to what one shall or shall not eat. A STRANGE STORY.

A CONVICT ON HIS WAY TO THE

Steps for a Call on the Governor-Without Sheril or Guard He Comes of His Own Free Will to Report to the Keeper of the Peniteutiary - He Seks Executive Cismency.

"I am-in the city on my way to the peniter tiary. Will remain here a day or so until I can see the governor, and after that will report to you." was the message conveyed to Colonel J. R. Towers, keeper of the penitentiary, yes-

It almost took his breath away. "Cool, to say the least," thought the colonel. But he was even more surprised when he learned that the sender of the message was stopping at one of the principal hotels in the city, and that, although accompanied by neither sheriff nor guard, he was, indeed, "on his way to the peni tentiary," being about to begin the life of a convict.

The story is quite interesting.
The name of this rather peculiar individual is C. W. C. Wright. He is a bright, intelligent fillow, twenty-four years of age, the son of Dr. J. F. Wright, a prominent physician of Monroe county. Unless Governor Gordon sees fit to listen favorably to the young man's application for a pardon, Wright will soon begin serving a three years' sentence for manslaugh. serving a three years' sentence for manslaugh

As Wright and his little brother were driving least the reset day they were set. wright and his little brother were driving along the read the next day they were set upon by Ham and his brother, W. J. Ham. In the melee which followed, Wright shot and killed W. J. Ham. He was tried for murder, but the jury evidently thought there were many mitigating circumstances, for their verdict read: "Guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the commission of an unlawful act." The dict read: "Guilty of involuntary manslaughter in the commission of an unlawful act." The sentence of the court was that he should be confined in the penitentiary or wherever the governor might elect, at hard labor for the period of three years.

The case was carried to the supreme court upon an application for a new trial. Three weeks ago the court decided against the plaintiff and the new trial was refused.

Wright's case is peculiar in many respects. He seems to enjoy the utmost confidence of his neighbors, including the sheriff and other officers—a fact which certainly speaks well for him. After his arrest he was released on $6,000 bail. Pending the decision of the supreme court upon the appeal, the bail was re-$6,000 bail. Pending the decision of the supreme court upon the appeal, the bail was reduced to $2,500, and at no time has Wright been compelled to submit to imprisonment. But the most peculiar phase of the case, and the one by which Colonel Towers was so completely knocked out, is this: When Wright was ready to ceme to Atlanta, Sheriff Wright was ready to cente to Auanta, Sherin King made out the commitment papers and, handing them to the prisoner, told him to report to Colonel Towers whenever he saw fit, Wright came up alone and was found by a CONSTITUTION reporter, yesterday, at the Hotel Weinmeister, where he was stopping. From him the reporter learned the main facts in his case. These were afterwards corrolograted by case. These were afterwards corroborated by an examination of the papers on file in the office of the reporter of the supreme court.

Wright's first intention was to report to the keeper of the penitentiary yesterday, but he is anxious to have an opportunity presenting his case to the govern he will not report until sometime today. The man is a Ponder, setting forth the nature of his malady and testifying that he is utterly unable to do any work whatsoever. Dr. Westmoreland, principal physician of the penitentiary, has interested himself in Wright's behalf, and will, today, help present his case to the governor. The young man's attorneys are Hon. John I. Hall, of Griffin, and A. D. Hammond, of Forsyth. Judge A. M. Speer and General L. J. Gartrell of this city. These gentlemen will call upon Governor Gorden today in Wright's behalf.

less, and he cannot move even a snort distance without the aid of crutches. It is easy to see that he is a very sick man, and, in his present condition, would be of no use whatever about a convict camp. The confidence placed in him by the officers and others who know him best, certainly speaks well for him. He has it in his power to escape, but prefers to let the law take its course. To a well for him. He has it in his power to escape, but prefers to let the law take its course. To a CONSTITUTION representative he expressed the hope that Governor Gordon might see fit to in-terfere in his case, as he fears that, in his present condition, he could not long survive the hardships of convict life.

A' SIMILAR CASE. "Cases of that kind are few and far between," remarked Colonel Towers, while discussing the subject yesterday. "I never had but one other. About three years ago a man living in the southern part of Georgia was convicted of manslaughter. There must have been many mitigating circumstances, for his sentence wa the shortest the law allows—one year. He was a man of good family, and I never was more surprised than when he presented himsels and told me his mission. He came in and self and told me his mission. He came in and said he was on his way to the penitentiary, explaining the circumstances. I learned that he had not been in prison at all since his conviction. In the course of his talk he said he had no doubt he could get a new trial and an acquittal, but he owned a little home and the expenses of such an action would probably set up all the little property he would probably eat up all the little property he had. He preferred to serve this sentence and save what little he had. I naturally took an interest in the case and saw that he was assigned to a good camp."

"Did you ever hear from him again?"
"Oh, yes. He served his sentence and came back perfectly happy."

Attention to Criminal Cases.

The failure on the part of congress to provide means with which to carry on the judiciary department of the federal government, has necessitated the postponement of all civil cases on the calendar, except the equity cases, which will be heard in chambers. At the beginning of the present term of the court there was on hand, for the purposes of the court, a small amount of money, but not enough to meet the expenses for more than four or five days. In order that the criminal business might proceed, Colonel for more than four or five days. In order that the criminal business might proceed, Colonel Buck, clerk of the courts, and Captain Nelms, marshal, arranged with some of the banks for the advancement of whatever sums might be necessary. The result is that the criminal business is being disposed of as rapidly as possible. Yesterday, in the circuit court, John Chronie of Walker county, was found guilty of working in a blockade distillery, and was sentenced to two months' imprisonment. Perry Henderson and Bill Norman, of the same county, were convicted of illicit distilling, and each got four months and $100 fine.

TO HAWKINSVILLE.

THE ATLANTA AND HAWKINS-VILLE RAILROAD.

another Important Railway Line to be Finished— The Georgia Improvement Company, with a Cash Cap:tal of $250,000, to Complete the Work—Other Interesting Facts.

The Atlanta and Hawkinsville railway company, which received its charter at the last session of the Georgia legislature, is now an ssured fact. It is certain to be carried forward to completion, and that without delay. All the embarrassments and difficulties in its way have been overcome. As is well known, there was a difficulty in the way which it was regarded as exceedingly hard to remove—viz, a want of sufficient money wherewith to construct the road. The counties through which the read was to pass failed to respond with due liberality in the way of subscriptions, and the bistoric of the currenties found the mealing. projectors of the enterprise found themselves crippled. How to raise the requisite amount of money, was the problem that confronted them, and they set about to devise some plan them, and they set about to devise some plan for securing the necessary funds.

A committee of the incorporators was appointed to undertake the work of raising money, and this committee determined that a stock company should be organized in Atlanta to undertake the completion of the railway. A company was organized under the name of the Atlanta Improvement company. A few weeks ago the company received its charter from the superior court of Fulton county. The capital stock of the company is $250,000, which has already been subscribed, and there are outside parties representing about $50,000 who are anxious to come in.

Books of subscription were opened in Atlanta and the following parties quickly come for-ward and subscribed the amount of money set Entertainment at the Second Baptist Church Tonight.

The girl's society of the Second Baptist unday-school will give an ex-Sunday-school will give an ex-ceedingly interesting entertainment tonight in the Sunday-school room, commencing at eight o'clock. After one or two recitations, etc., the children will render the child's play, entitled, "The Land of Nod." In addition to this there will be an illustration of the parable of the Ten Virgins. Mrs. Dr. Arbeely, who was born and reared in Damascus, Syria, has kindly consented to assist the girls in the preparation of their costumes. The "Ten Virgins" will, therefore, appear just as the eastern women were accus tomed to dress in the time of Christ. The girl will also have representations of the eastern lamps, they being made after the model of an original lamp which was brought from Jerusa-em. The purpose of the entertainment is to raise funds to fit up the pastor's study in the church. A large crowd is expected.
